LT LAKE CITY — LDS Church members heard more than 30 General Authorities address five sessions of the church's 151st Annual General Conference Saturday morning.

Morning and afternoon sessions Saturday and Sunday were broadcast over many radio, television and closed-circuit stations and attended by more than 8,000 people lined into the Salt Lake Tabernacle.

Meanwhile, about 80 protesters picketed the sessions of the conference, claiming the church's stand on the Equal Rights Amendment is not a moral issue, but a political issue.

President Spencer W. Kimball said the church is criticized because it is doing the Lord's work; Elder Hartman Rector Jr., a member of the First Quorum of Seventy, Sunday afternoon attacked abortions, homosexuality and birth control.

The statistical report for December 1980 listed church membership at 4,638,000. There were 188 full-time missions, 7,863 wards (an increase of 1,105) and 4,723 branches.

Angel Abrea, 47, Buenos Aires, Argentina, was named the 41st member of the First Quorum of Seventy. He is the first Latin American General Authority.

"We are continually being tried and tested as individuals and as a church, and there are more trials yet to come, but he is not discouraged or dismayed," President Kimball said in final talk of the conference.

"Always remember that if this were not the Lord's work, the adversary would not pay any attention to us. If this church were merely a church of men and women, teaching only the doctrines of men, we would encounter little or no criticism or resistance — but because this is the church of Him whose name it bears, we must not be surprised when criticism or difficulties arise."

Happy family experience

Elder Rector said if parents would give children a happy family experience, "they will not want to be homosexuals, which I am sure is an acquired addiction just as drugs, alcohol and pornography are."

"The promoters of homosexuality say they were born that way, I do not believe it is true. There are no female spirits trapped in bodies and vice versa. He who made them, made them male and female."

During the annual sustaining of church leaders Saturday morning, four women and one man shouted, "No. We support the Equal Rights Amendment."

All five said they are LDS Church members, but only one admitted attending any church meeting since then.

Elder Gordon B. Hinckley of the Council of the Twelve opened Saturday afternoon's session by defending the church's line of succession to its presidency.

"We in the church recognize that the fulfillment of all blessings given under the authority of the priesthood is conditioned upon two things," he said. "One, the worthiness and faithfulness of the recipient and, two, the overriding will and wisdom of God."

Elder Hinckley said it is clear the Lord designated the Council of the Twelve, with Brigham Young as president, to lead the church after Joseph Smith's death.

The LDS Church traded a transcript, thought to be a blessing given by Joseph Smith to his son, to the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints March 19, because of its sentimental value for the RLDS church, whose presidents have been lineal descendants of Joseph Smith.

"First, it should be said that the document is a transcript of a blessing," Elder Hinckley said. "It is not a record of ordination to an office."

Joseph Smith indicated a number of men who might succeed him, Elder Hinckley said, adding the document did not invalidate the LDS Church's line of authority.

Unnecessary financial burdens

Regional representatives, stake presidents and bishops met Friday night to advise placing unnecessary financial burdens on church members.

Elder Hinckley told the leaders tithing and fast offerings were still required, but church leaders should carefully examine additional costs such as budget assessments, travel and social and recreational programs.

President Kimball told the leadership meeting that resources must be used more wisely.

Elder Mark E. Petersen of the Council of the Twelve issued the same advice to church members Sunday morning, cautioning against the unwise use of credit cards and overspending financial resources.

"We should plan well for our future, and not live entirely for the present, nor suppose that the status quo will continue indefinitely."

"We must be industrious, we must be frugal, we must seek a proper balance between our needs and our desires, and, especially, we must re-establish our lives upon a spiritual foundation," Elder Petersen said.

Another member of the Council of the Twelve, Elder Thomas S. Monson, spoke of the importance of caring for the elderly, and quoted the ancient apostle James: "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction."

President N. Eldon Tanner, 82, first counselor in the First Presidency, briefly bore his testimony Sunday morning, thanking church members for their prayers. He has been ailing for several months.

Elder LeGrand Richards of the Council of the Twelve said Joseph Smith was prophesied of in the Old Testament, when God promised Joseph the son of Jacob, a prophet "like unto Moses."

Bring men to conviction

"Joseph Smith was the prophet promised to 'bring men to the conviction of my word which has already gone forth among them,'" he said.

Elder Loren C. Dunn of the First Quorum of Seventy said individual faith is the foundation of the gospel. "As a principle of power and of action and as the key to our salvation, our individual faith, then, becomes of absolute importance to us."

"You are people too often depend upon someone else's image rather than their own," said Elder James E. Faust, a member of the Council of the Twelve. "In security and lack of self-esteem may be related to lack of self-respect."

"It is my firm persuasion that building self-esteem sufficiently to forsake all evil requires a consecration to the saving principles and ordinances of the gospel under divine priesthood authority," he said.

Elder Faust cited chastity and modesty as most necessary for the acquisition of greater self-esteem.

"If we do not obey, the power to obey disappears. Our capability to recognize good is weakened," said Elder Ted E. Brewerton of the First Quorum of Seventy.

Shut valve threatens launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — An electrical problem popped open a valve on America's space shuttle engine systems with helium gas. One of two "pogo" valves designed to minimize launch vibrations popped open for no apparent reason.

The shutdown had been scheduled to start at 11 p.m. EST, aiming for liftoff at 6:50 a.m. Tuesday.

Thai leader returns to Bangkok

BANGKOK, Thailand — Thailand's royal army and Prime Minister Prem Uthaisakuldech returned to Bangkok Sunday, two days after an attempted coup by rebellious generals was crushed by troops loyal to Prem.

More than 100 officers involved in the revolt were under "temporary detention," military spokesmen said. They included all the senior officers who took part in the coup except its leader, Gen. Siriphat Chalitpana.

The report that he had fled to Burma was not confirmed.

U.S. Israeli security U.S. priority

JERUSALEM — Secretary of State Alexander Haig, seeking to calm Israeli fears over the American military equipment to Saudi Arabia, declared Sunday that Israel's security and well-being are "central to American policy in the Middle East."

Haig arrived here on the second stop of his tour of the Middle East nations. Earlier, he conferred in Cairo with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Reagan monitors Polish situation

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, running a intermittent fever and showing traces of pneumonia, deferred briefly Sunday with Vice President George Bush, who briefed him as "fully on top of the situation in Poland."

The president also met with Vernon Jordan, a civil rights leader who also was the target of a assassination attempt.

Wounds discovered in Reagan's wounded leg are "most normal scarring and debris," Dr. Dennis O'Leary. They were found in a set of chest X-rays taken Sunday morning.

Utah quake measures 3.5

LT LAKE CITY — A small earthquake measuring 3.5 on the Richter scale was reported Sunday night about 15 miles south of Cedar Rapids, University of Utah Seismograph Station reported.

Geologist Bill Richards said the quake and aftershocks were widely felt in Cedar City and throughout southern Utah, Ariz., on the Utah-Arizona border. No damage was reported, he said.

New Seventy named

The first Latin American General Authority was named to the First Quorum of the Seventy Saturday morning during General Conference in Salt Lake City.

Angel Abrea of Buenos Aires, Argentina, was named to the 41-member quorum moments after the meeting began in the tabernacle, under the direction of President Marion G. Romney, second counselor in the First Presidency.

Elder Abrea, 47, will reside indefinitely in Argentina with his wife, Maria Victoria Chispasino de Abrea, and his three daughters. He is currently completing a three-year term as president of the Argentina Rosario Mission, one of five missions in the country.

The First Presidency also announced the appointments of 28 new regional representatives during the weekend conference. One of the new representatives is Robert C. Seamons, a BYU staff member.

The statistical report for December 1980 listed church membership at 4,638,000. There were 188 full-time missions, 7,863 wards (an increase of 1,105) and 4,723 branches.

Regional representatives, stake presidents and bishops met Friday night to advise placing unnecessary financial burdens on church members.

Seamons will preside over the Orem and Orem Central Regions, which encompass seven stakes. He has served as a mission president of the Oregon Portland Mission (1974-77) and stake president for 11 years in Southern California (1961-71). He will couple his new calling with that of a sealer in the Provo Temple.

ELDER ANGEL ABREA

Elder Rector assails perversions

Homosexuality is an acquired addiction and is a sin, Elder Hartman Rector Jr. of the LDS First Quorum of Seventy told church members Sunday.

Elder Rector also attacked abortion, birth control, sterilization and the lack of love and affection within families.

"If children have a happy family experience, they will not want to be homosexuals, which I am sure is an acquired addiction just as drugs, alcohol and pornography are," he told the final session of the church's 151st Annual General Conference.

"The promoters of homosexuality say they were born that way, but I do not believe it is true. There are no female spirits trapped in male bodies and vice versa. He who made them, made them male and female. 'Every form of homosexuality is sin,' said President Spencer W. Kimball."

Elder Rector said there is an average of three abortions every 60 seconds in the United States. "Abortion kills more Americans in one year than all the wars did from Valley Forge to Vietnam."

Elder Rector said the Lord may smite the earth again if "there is no turning of hearts of the fathers to the children and the hearts of the children to their father."

"I have often wondered how or why the earth would be wasted if the children's hearts did not turn to their fathers. Today, it is very clear for all to see."

"If when the Lord comes He find nothing but birth control, abortion, sterilization and homosexuals, the earth is wasted. What was the purpose of creation anyway?"

"If we no longer permit the Lord to send his children to the earth, then it is wasted and as in the days of the flood, He will surely destroy it."

Party discusses Poland

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev arrived Sunday for a Communist Party meeting at which it appeared Poland's labor unrest would be a key topic. He immediately conferred with his Czechoslovak counterpart on "international problems."

In Berlin, the East German news agency ADN reported Sunday that fresh units — including tank, rocket, artillery, reconnaissance and communications troops — were joining the two-week-old Soyuz-81 maneuvers in and around Poland.

"In the concentration and jump-off points, army members were informed politically and militarily of the upcoming combat mission," ADN said, apparently referring to similar missions in maneuvers, rather than to real combat.

President Reagan sent Brezhnev a message Friday night, White House spokesman Larry Speakes reported Sunday in Washington. An administration source said it concerned Poland, but declined to provide details. NBC News quoted a senior administration official, which said not only Party, as saying the message warned against Soviet military intervention and was the first from Reagan to Brezhnev on the Polish situation.

Beno said Poland would be represented by Stefan Olsowski, a Politburo member considered a hard-line on policy toward the independent union Solidarity. Beno said Poland and three of its neighbors — the Soviet Union, East Germany and Hungary — would be the only foreign delegations to speak before the full congress.

Sources elsewhere in the East bloc refused to rule out the possibility of a summit in Prague this week to decide whether to try to crush Poland's independent union movement.

Brezhnev was met Sunday at the Prague airport by Czechoslovak party chief Gustav Husak, the official media of both nations reported. The Soviet news agency Tass in a dispatch filed from here said the two leaders had a "friendly meeting," discussed relations between their countries and "exchanged views on international problems."

In recent days the Soviet press has sharpened its criticism of the Polish Communist Party for failing to deal sternly with the demands and strike threats of the independent union Solidarity.

Defense Department sources in Washington who did not want to be identified said there was some "new movement" east of Poland, but they did not elaborate.

Marchers push ERA, rally at Conference

By LEE DAVIDSON
Daily Universe Staff Writers

"What do we want?"
"ERA."
"When do we want it?"
"Now!"

The serenely on Temple Square with crowds lounging and listening to speeches was interrupted Saturday and Sunday by the chants of demonstrators protesting the LDS Church's opposition to the proposed Equal Rights Amendment. Five ERA supporters voiced their refusal to sustain church leaders during Saturday's meeting.

Daily Universe staff members counted 78 demonstrators, accompanied by two dogs on leash and an airplane flying above with a banner reading "The American family, flag and ERA." The protesters marched to Temple Square from the State Capitol and circled a block for an hour Saturday morning, singing and chanting, then returned to Temple Square Sunday to demonstrate.

The small number of demonstrators was accompanied by a near-equal number of reporters and photographers from local and national news media and dozens of police officers present to escort and protect the protesters.

The march was organized by the Ex-Mormons for ERA, but it attracted many pro-ERA groups from all western states, New Jersey and even Great Britain.

"The Mormon Church is recognized as the number one enemy of the passage of the ERA," said Lee Anne Walker, president of the Utah Coalition for Equal Rights.

"With all the various groups coming from around the West to demonstrate against the church, we decided to host the first Semi-Annual Western Regional ERA Networking Conference which will always coincide with General Conference," said Ms. Walker, a member of the LDS church and graduate of BYU.

"Without the Mormon Church, the United States could now have an Equal Rights Amendment," she said. "We want to plan to overcome their influence for the passage of the ERA, especially in states with a great deal of Mormon influence such as Utah, Nevada, Arizona and Florida."

ERA supporters claim the church and its members have used undue influence to fight the amendment's passage. The church has published statements against the amendment claiming it would endanger family life.

Three more states are needed to ratify the amendment before June 30, 1982 for it to become law.

The Ex-Mormons for ERA, only one of about 20 organizations in our coalition, organized the protests. Some other member organizations consider demonstrations to be a bit radical. Our coalition merely tries to act as a peacemaker and distributor of information," Ms. Walker said.

The object of the protest was to show that support for ERA in Utah and the West is alive and strong, she said.

One group which marched with the ERA protesters was Affirmation, which "serves gay Mormons and their friends without discrimination," according to the organization's literature.

Pres. Kimball: expect trials

By GAYLEN WEBB
Universe Staff Writer

Within the walls of Temple Square, 86-year-old President Spencer W. Kimball presided over and counseled members of the LDS Church in the 151st Annual Conference.

"Always remember that if this were not the Lord's work, the adversary would not pay any attention to us. If this church were merely a church of men and women teaching only the doctrines of men, we would encounter little or no criticism or resistance."

"But because this is the church of Him whose name it bears, we must not be surprised when criticisms or difficulties arise," counseled President Kimball in his closing remarks at the end of the conference.

"The truth will prevail," he said, after stating that there are more trials yet to come.

President Kimball counseled the 4.7 million church members on various topics during the two-day conference.

"Our people have always been challenged by many and varied hardships which have tried our faith. It has been so from the beginning," he said in the Welfare Session Saturday morning.

Those pioneer experiences formed strong family ties, he said, adding that the member's resources, like the pioneers, are being severely strained.

"But once again our pioneer discipline can and will see us through," he said.

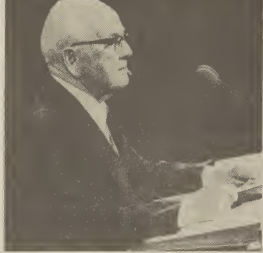

"Our pioneer ancestors did not look to government to care for their families. Each one of them that their family was their treasure and their own responsibility."

"Live within your means and not beyond them," he said, counseling members to plan and work in a way that will permit them to go back without the luxuries that times of affluence provide.

"Let us go back to the basics and follow the fundamentals," President Kimball said, promising a spiritual resurgence in the lives of those who heeded the counsel.

Later, in the opening session at 10 a.m. he said, "We are impressed that the mission of the church is three fold: to proclaim the gospel, to perfect the saints and to redeem the dead."

The Prophet, who has traveled over 50,000 miles by air since the last conference, said two temples have been dedicated and ground has been broken for four more since that time. "But these temples are only a beginning," he said in a later session, speaking of the announced plans to build nine more temples throughout the world.

Reporting that 210,777 new converts had joined the church in 1980, he said a miraculous upsurge in the work of the Lord has occurred among the people of the Caribbean Islands.

"Let us speak, more often than we sometimes do, in terms of blessings which will flow to us as we keep the commandments and do our duty," he cautioned leaders in the Priesthood Session.

"We must not overburden the people," he said, counseling leaders that prudence and wisdom dictate that steps to retrench and husband resources need to be taken.

"Turning again to finances, he counseled that individuals, families, wards and stakes should learn to live within their means."

"The church does not and must not seek to displace the family, but is organized to help create and nurture righteous families as well as righteous individuals," he said, and asked members not neglect those who do not have the blessings of the traditional families.

ERA

"They are not part of our coalition. I do not recognize them. Someone else bought the march permit and they showed up. It's a free world, we couldn't stop them from participating," Ms. Walker said.

Affirmation members from California and Utah marched with the other pro-ERA groups around Temple Square carrying a banner saying, "Affirmation — Gay and Lesbian Mormons for ERA."

Some marchers' songs and chants were compiled in a pamphlet bearing a photo of LDS Church President Spencer W. Kimball on the cover with the question, "Will we let this man kill ERA?"

Some of the songs were titled "Excommunicate" and "Spencer Kimball Came to Town." Chants included "Mormon Church and the KKK, both are anti-ERA" and "Forever pregnant, never equal."

A few bystanders applauded the marchers with the thumbs up sign, while others shouted "Down with ERA," or "We've come a long way without ERA."

The protestors reported they were basically treated well from observers, with the exception of some obscene gestures and comments.

Meanwhile, five Equal Rights Amendment supporters voted not to sustain LDS Church leadership during the Saturday morning session of its General conference.

It was the second time in six months the usually unanimous vote met with opposition from church members upset with the faith's opposition to ERA.

The dissenting vote came after President Marion G. Romney of the First Presidency asked the church membership present in the tabernacle for a sustaining vote of the church's leaders.

When he asked if there were any opposing votes, four women and one man in the rear of the building stood and shouted, "No, we support the Equal Rights Amendment."

The opposing votes were not acknowledged from the pulpit, but later the quintet was informed it should meet with Elder Bruce R. McConkie, of the Quorum of Twelve Apostles, to discuss why they could not sustain the church's leaders.

One of the protestors said no specific time had been set for the meeting as of Sunday afternoon.

Those who refused to sustain the church leaders were Cheryl Peel, of Pacific Palisades, Calif.; Lynn Westford and Natalie Bradford of Pasadena, Calif.; Lucille Eisner of Manteca, Calif.; and Sheldon Rampton of Princeton, N.J.

All five are members of the LDS Church, but only Mr. Bradford admitted to having attended church meetings in recent months.

At the church's last General Conference in October, three women voted not to sustain LDS Church President Spencer W. Kimball as a prophet, seer and revelator because of his statements against the ERA, which they said were political, not spiritual issues.

The five said they did not expect to be excommunicated from the church for their stand because they said they support the leadership "in spiritual matters."

Rampton said he returned from a LDS mission to Japan in 1978. He has not regularly attended church meetings since the excommunication of Sonia Johnson last year.

Lines form at 2 a.m. for sessions

By DEBBIE GIUNTA
and LEE DAVIDSON
Universe Staff Writers

Not even pre-dawn hours or freezing temperatures could deter hundreds of people who converged on Temple Square Sunday in hopes of attending General Conference in the Mormon Tabernacle.

Lines started forming outside the gates at 2 a.m., with the eager conference goers huddled together in sleeping bags and blankets. Users opened the hermeneutic doors at 6 a.m., and ten minutes later, the historic building was full.

The crowd was pretty quiet outside, trying to stay warm," said Leo Nielsen, an usher from Logan, "but once they arrived they started begging us to let them in. When we did, many started singing hymns."

The volunteer ushers are noted for their ability to fit "one more person" on a bench.

"We want to seat everyone we can in the tabernacle, but a lot of people just don't get in. If they don't make it into the morning session, at least they are in the front of the line for the afternoon session," said Gayle Burke, an usher from Salt Lake City.

Two BYU students traveled to conference by motorcycle. Dave Van Blerkom, a freshman from Greenwich, Conn., and Doug Moser, a freshman from Ventura, Calif., said although they each wore two pairs of pants, ski parkas, mufflers, helmets and gloves, they still had to stop twice to warm up.

"It was very cold, but we wanted to see conference," Moser said.

Those who arrived early as 7 a.m. weren't assured a seat at the 10 a.m. session, and waited in line for the final session at 2 p.m.

ERA protestors Cheryl

Dalton, was frustrated with having to wait in line to attend conference.

"They should just hold a lottery for the seats," she said. "I saw Paul from Los Angeles said she comes to conference every April, and always gets in a session."

"Faith, all it takes is faith," Mrs. Paul said.

Attending conference for the first time was Charlotte Cowley from Huntington Beach, Calif. She arrived on Temple Square at 7 a.m. to get in line, and said she made hotel reservations in February to assure accommodations for her family.

Also in Salt Lake City for the first time were Irene Knoll and Dale Bernfield from Puxillup, Wash. "I hope we get in the tabernacle, but with all these people I'm not sure we will," Bernfield said.

Demonstrators commemorate death of King

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — More than 5,000 demonstrators urging Congress to extend the U.S. Voting Rights Act joined together Sunday and marched to the Edmund Pettus Bridge, where blacks seeking the right to vote were bloodied by state troopers in 1965.

The march also commemorated the death of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., who led the milestone Selma-to-Montgomery march after a first attempt to cross the bridge was halted by club-swinging troopers.

Sunday's march was peaceful, with black police and deputy sheriffs helping provide security.

Eleven-year-old Jeffrey Hardenbrook of West Valley, said he didn't mind waiting in line for conference, because "it is more exciting than regular church meetings, even if you have to sit on the hard benches and just listen."

Women-sensation Glen Kozlowski heels in a pass during first-half action in Friday's Blue-White football game at Cougar Stadium. The wide receiver graduated from high school in San Diego last December and enrolled immediately at BYU, giving himself the advantage of a spring training under his belt before actually starting his college career next fall.

Defense edges offense

By MICHAEL MCQUAIN
Universe Staff Writer

In a case of new people doing the same old and doing them surprisingly well, as the football team closed spring practice with its Blue-White intersquad scrimmage Friday in Cougar Stadium.

Though Jim McMahon, Danny Plater and the other offensive first-teamers had a hard time, football still filled the air, as a hard-inexperienced, but talented offense the defense, 24-21.

To an excessive number of injuries during the two days of practice, the coaching staff held the format at the last minute. Instead of a scrimmage, the team split into two offenses and defenses, the coaching staff once again pitted the offense against the defense in a controlled scrimmage.

A system that gives the defense points for interceptions, blocked kicks and the offense into fourth-down situations, a fumble recovery and a blocked punt attempt to offset three aerial scores by the team.

Coaches decided to give some of the key offensive players the day off to take a long look at talent and assess the depth situation at positions, particularly quarterback, and our sophomore signal-callers are vying for 2 spot behind All-American McMahon.

Krzmarzick led all passers, completing 12 of 13 for 125 yards and two touchdowns. Young also shined through the air, completing 13 out of 17 passes for 131 yards. The sophomore from Connecticut also displayed some scrambling ability, as a Jim McMahon.

Kimball went two for nine for 40 yards and a fumble. Hurdler Stella Edmonson completed six out of 10 for 41 yards.

Head Coach LaVell Edwards and Coach Hurdler said the young defense executed well, and of the less. In addition to the passing, the game looked solid, led by Scott Pettis' 52 yard eight carries.

Krzmarzick's two T.D.'s, and a 1-yard touchdown plunge by Waymon Hamilton weren't enough to beat a hard-hitting veteran defense.

Fueled by tackle Mike Morgan's first-half recovery, interceptions by Dave Farr, Dave McKee and Matt Johnson and a blocked field-goal recovery by linebacker Todd Shell, the whites outlasted the blues in the see-saw scrimmage.

The highlight of the afternoon came in the kicking department, when kicker Lee Johnson, nicknamed "thunderfoot," boomed a first-half punt 76 yards. The sophomore place kicker punted four times for 236 yards, averaging 59 yards a kick. He also added a 33-yard field-goal after regulation time had expired.

Team Doctor Brent Pratley summed-up the scrimmage, and in general, the overall Cougar situation best. "I think it's just perpetuation of a dynasty, period."

Women qualify 19 for track regionals

In only two weeks of the outdoor season, the BYU women's track and field team has qualified 19 women for regionals — seven of them in two events each.

Although the tracksters did not place high in their events at Saturday's Sun Devil Classic at Tempe, Ariz., Stacy Tangen placed fifth in the 3,000 meters in 9:57.66 to qualify for regionals. Hurdler Stella Edmonson ran the 100-meter hurdles in 14.66.

At a dual meet on Thursday, two Cougars qualified for nationals as BYU defeated

Southern California 93-64 but lost to San Diego State 90-68.

Qualifying for nationals were high jumper Marie Bettoli with a leap of 5-11, and Heather Kuselski who won the discus with a school-record throw of 165-6.

Sixers down Bucks, Lakers eliminated

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philadelphia — Julius Erving scored 38 points, including a pair of game-winning free throws with 38 seconds remaining, as the Philadelphia 76ers defeated the Milwaukee Bucks 125-122 Sunday in the first of their best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal playoff series.

Boston — Larry Bird and Kevin McHale ignited a third-quarter burst that broke open a tight game and propelled the Boston Celtics to a 121-109 victory over the Chicago Bulls in the opening game of the Eastern Conference National Basketball Association semifinal playoff series Sunday.

The lead had changed hands nine times in the third quarter before Bird hit two free throws, giving Boston the lead for good at 78-77 with 3:44 left in the period.

Y sweeps Cowboys

By RICK WOODEN
Universe Staff Writer

The BYU baseball team scored 38 runs on 48 hits while sweeping a three game series from Wyoming on the Cougar diamond Friday and Saturday.

The Cougars shutout Wyoming to win the first series, a Friday's doubleheader 9-0. Starting pitcher Peter Kendrick gave up only three hits while picking up his fourth shutout of the season.

Wally Joyner and Steve Campbell lead the Cougar hitting attack. Joyner had three hits and four RBIs, and Campbell added two homers in three at-bats.

In the second game Friday, the Cougars exploded for eight runs in the first inning and ran away with a 17-5 victory. Campbell again had the big bat with four hits and five RBIs. The Cougars had 20 hits in 42 at bats for the game.

Saturday saw the Cougars produce another first inning barrage of runs and take a 12-4 win for the series sweep.

Campbell, the BYU lead-off hitter, opened the first inning with a homerun off Wyoming starting pitcher Mike Henney. Before Henney could be replaced, he gave up seven runs and retired only one BYU batter. Before the inning was over, BYU scored a total of 11 runs on 10 hits.

For the series, Campbell led the Cougar attack with eight runs, nine hits, and eight RBIs. Four of Campbell's hits came via the homerun. He hit two in the opening game Friday and one each in the following two games to up his season total to 10.

Kenny Clayton used the Wyoming sweep to continue his personal attack on the BYU record books.

In the first game of Friday's doubleheader, Clayton had two hits to tie the record for the most hits in a career at 221. In the second game, Clayton had three hits to set a new standard of 224. He added to that with two hits Saturday and will continue to up the record with each additional hit of the season.

Clayton also tied the record for the most doubles in a career set by Dane Irog in 1969-71 at 45.

Young named coach of year

Although none of BYU's gymnasts qualified for Saturday's national NCAA Championship final round, BYU's coach received honors at the championships in Lincoln, Neb.

Wayne Young was selected as Midwest Region coach of the year. The selection is made from all the coaches in the region. "It is an extreme compliment considering the top gymnastic teams are in the Midwest Region," Young said.

"I was floored at the announcement. It is quite an honor from my peers and this is only my second year coaching at BYU," he said.

Of the three BYU gymnasts participating at nationals, Massahiko Kinjo came closest to reaching the finals — within one-tenth of a point.

A question arose about one judge's scores for Kinjo. The judges deliberated and compromised, but not enough to get Kinjo into the finals. Young said, "If Kinjo had gotten to the finals he would have done it, but he gave it his best shot."

Kinjo scored 9.45 in the compulsory and a 9.65 in the optional. Greg Vigil finished in

Y ruggers romp USU

Without seven of its starters, the BYU rugby team romped Utah State 47-16 this weekend.

Matt Brown led the Cougars by scoring four 2-point conversions and one touchdown. BYU is now 9-0 overall and 3-0 in league play.

the top 60 in the vaulting and Josh Visek finished in the top 75 in the still rings.

Young said he felt the top teams of the season had a small edge over the other gymnasts performing. "The judges have a tendency to vote toward the strong teams," he said, adding that he felt 70 percent of the top gymnasts did not make it to finals.

"This isn't the end of the world. The guys will rest, recuperate and start training for next year's NCAA Championships," Young said.

Padilla takes 1st, Cougars 2nd

Padilla added another first place Saturday as he captured the mile at the Sun Devil Classic at Tempe, Ariz., with a time of 4:00.98.

A number of BYU students captured second in events. Stephen Fernholm, who is racing this season, took runner-up honors in the mile, put with a 65-foot, 7-inch throw. Goran Kimball went two for nine for 40 yards and a fumble. Hurdler Stella Edmonson completed six out of 10 for 41 yards.

Head Coach LaVell Edwards and Coach Hurdler said the young defense executed well, and of the less. In addition to the passing, the game looked solid, led by Scott Pettis' 52 yard eight carries.

ERA groups gather to form network

The Equal Rights Coalition of Utah hosted a meeting Saturday afternoon to establish a regional network and discuss strategy to find new advocates for the Equal Rights Amendment.

The meeting, held at the First Methodist-Western Regional Equal Rights Amendment Activities Networking Conference, was attended by mostly women from at least seven states.

Some of the women said they were LDS, some said they were ex-LDS and others said they were non-Mormon. Approximately 75 persons attended the meeting which started out to achieve its purpose and ended up as a pep rally to boost the morale of the participants.

Lee Anne Walker, president of the Coalition which is constituted of 20 organizations, said the general conference of the LDS Church provided an opportunity for the women to come together to discuss the actions they needed to take to obtain ratification of the ERA.

"What we hope to accomplish here is to extend our resources beyond Utah," she said. "In a sense, what has happened is the ERA's failure on the part of the members to realize all parts of the country need to be reached."

Mrs. Walker said thirty-two of the minimum thirty-five have ratified the proposed amendment which has an extension deadline for this year.

Utah and Arkansas, she said, had been ex-empted from the map of states as unlikely to ratify the amendment by an organization in Washington, D.C., which is working for ratification of the amendment.

Polly Hough, a University of Utah graduate student, outlined research she had done about networking as part of her graduate studies in educational administration.

She outlined the basics of networking for the women, but stopped to allow the audience to introduce their own ideas.

The introductions took the rest of the meeting. Most of the women related experiences fighting for ERA and combating the LDS Church.

The speakers in the audience frequently called the LDS Church the enemy which was often accompanied by a round of applause.

Although most of the women present were members of organizations supporting ratification of the ERA, some came to gain information about why ERA should be supported.

One woman stood and asked those present "not to put down the Brethren or the leaders of the Church," but she left soon afterwards.

One woman, a non-Mormon, said she had moved to Utah with an open mind and had not worried about finding prejudice in Utah, but she went on to say, "Their (LDS) church leaders have taught me prejudice, and I don't know how I'm going to get rid of it."

Jury convicts man

By DANE RIGBY
Universe Staff Writer

A Spanish Fork man was found guilty Thursday by a 4th District Court jury of purchasing stolen merchandise.

The jury deliberated for more than two hours to decide whether or not he knew the merchandise was stolen.

According to court testimony, on Jan. 22, Bryan bought over an estimated $8,000 of merchandise for $200 from Robert Watson, Debbie Meyers and Winston Smith.

The property, which included a microwave oven, a hair dryer and silverware, had been taken from Smith's parents' home.

According to court records, Watson and Meyers were sentenced earlier this month and are now serving terms at the Utah State Prison. Smith pleaded guilty to theft charges in the Eighth District Court and was given a suspended sentence of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

During his final argument, Jay Pitt, prosecuting county attorney, told jurors there was no dispute about whether Bryan had been caught unauthorizedly controlling or using the stolen merchandise. Pitt then said the whole issue was centered on whether or not Bryan knew the merchandise was stolen.

Gary Weight, defense attorney, said the jury must decide if the merchandise was stolen.

"What you must decide is whether Danny knew it. Look at it through Danny's eyes. The state's case is a kid who stole from his own parents. You must ask yourselves 'Is he a credible witness?'"

According to Weight, Winston, who testified that Bryan was guilty, wanted to put the blame on everyone else so he could get off.
